

Street Survival, Fall 2009

Students and teachers gather (above) for a class photo after completing the Tire Rack Street Survival course at Bremerton Motorsports Park on Oct. 17. Below, instructor Dave Conover tells students what they can expect to learn during the day in class and behind the wheel. Because of the program's growing popularity, the Northwest Region is looking for a venue in the Seattle-Tacoma-Eastside area where it can hold the Street Survival course beyond the three classes planned in Bremerton in 2010.

Driving Exercise Review

Handling

- What We Are Teaching...
 - How to smoothly change vehicle direction
- Why We're Teaching It...
 - Better understanding of vehicle's capability during transitional maneuvers
- How We Teach It...
 - Driving between slalom cones requires good use of eyes and smooth integration of steering, brakes and throttle