

Jake Nygaard photo

Shane Anderson drives his father Craig's "Superman" Austin-Healey to the cemetery after the memorial service.

Denise Williamson photo

Craig Anderson loved a good joke. Witness the fake hand sprouting from the boot of his Austin Mini Cooper S.

the moment' at the events.

"I remember offering up my Camaro to Craig and then riding along with him as he drove the honorary last autocross run at the Boeing Kent Site ... now many years ago.

"I also remember many years of Craig's event T-shirt salesmanship at the NWR National Tours in which he employed an admirable range of ploys, gags and razzle-dazzle to 'move the merchandise.'

"I will always remember Craig and his Healey too, mainly because they were such close reflections of each other. Both were of an older make-model, but showing their age rather well. Both had a unique appearance and had often loud sound outputs, but they were always present at the autocross events to participate energetically with a much younger crowd.

"And I vividly remember when Craig received the WWSCC's Spirit of the Council Award. As those who were there will remember, Craig was actually speechless (possibly for the first time ever) when his name was announced. Craig shared with me later that evening how honored and humbled he felt to be the first recipient of the Spirit of the Council Award. In retrospect, everyone who